He was apparently too much confused then to think of giving built or looking for a bondsman. He addmited, in fact that he was dazed by the proceedings.

McDonald's arrest was more sensational. It was made at the Hoffman House meeting by Detective Crowley. As the officer tapped the banker on the shoulder McDonald selzed the warrant and read it hurriedly.

"What is the charge?" he asked before he had time to peruse it all.

"Forgery," was the renly.

"Forgery," repeated McDonald as his jaw dropped and his face turned pale. He sank back into the chair from whigh he had half risen and read the warrant over three or four times.

"This is an outrage, a — outrage," he cried, choking with enotion. "I have lost enough in money and suffered enough without having this humiliation thrust upon me. I have done nothing; what could I have done to merit this clusters.

"Where are you going to take me to now?" he demanded after a pause.

The detective said that Police Headquarters was the next stopting place. To the Mulberry street building they went in a cab. There McDonald answered the usual questions.

To the Muberry street building they went in a cab.

There McDonald answered the usual questions.

"Ed" Stokes, of the Hoffman House, had been brought along as bondsman. He left Police Headquarters by the Mott street entrance, accompanied by the detective. They drove first to the Hoffman House, and then to the Court of General Sessions.

Kalisher and Cashier Thompson were also arrested at the Hoffman House, where they were attending the stock. Children about seven vears ago. chord they were attending the stock-boldsraw meeting. Both were also taken to Police Headquarters. Then all made their way to the Chambers street court. Frederick Unlimann had forestalled his arrest earlier in the day by calling at the District Attorney's office and asking what amount of ball would be required in the even of a warrant being issued for his arrest. He was told $5.00. He left, presumably for the purpose of having everything ready. His counsel, Lawyer Johnson, of the firm of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, was with him.

All the men but Cashier Thompson were released on ball until this morning by Judge Martine, who came down to the General Sessions Building for that purpose. Thompson spent the night in a cell at Headquarters.

with the glowing colors of truthfulness, but never in our long experience has such a one as her related been reported, says the Millen Herald.

It is an entirely modern snake story, and it relegates the old rusty tales out of sight. It truly belongs to the new era. It is a blcycle snake story—a regular safety, pneumatic tire snake story—a snake story that would make the hair rise on a tiger's back and make Bill Mye turn green with envy.

But it is a true snake story and was related to us by a young gentleman who is good-looking and truthful. While telling the adventure to us his soft black eves dilated, and his black mustache bristled.

"I took a ride on my bleycle," said he, "on an embankmen near Augusta. The sun was blazing down at a South African rate. Working on my trusty steed the way home, after a good long spin, suddenly my attention was drawn to an object in the distance of immense proportions. Coming nearer I soon saw that it was a large rattlesnake.

"Retern I could not, neither was I willing if I could, and I supposed that by this time the snake had "discovered" me, for it lay sullenly in my path, As I approached nearer and nearer it colled lighter and tighter for battle. On secting this I, of course, formed my plan for action also. There was no escape, and as quick as lightning I rode over the rattler to rattle no more. His snake-ship rebounded as if he were made of rubber.

"I glanced hastily over my shoulder."

The next morning I wished to use it to take my usual exercise. On bringing it before the light I found the histre of the tubing faded away, and in its place there was a dark, duil, blue color overspreading my once magnificent and shining wheel. Since then the pneumatic tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matte tire has decayed so that I had to matter the matter of the mat matic tire has decayed so that I had to have it completely overhauled. The cause of the complete dilapidation of my prided wheel is that the snake in its rage sank its poisonous fangs in the tire, thus causing the polson to spread all over the cycle.

"On going back to the scene of the combat a few days later I found the direl benes of my antagonist and twenty-four large rattles, the snake measuring exactly eight feet six and a quarter inches."
